The CITY Program: Transition Assessment and Planning Based on Career Exploration on a University Campus

Supported by The HSC Foundation, The George Washington University and Kingsbury School developed a university-school partnership -Career Investigations for Transitioning Youth (C.I.T.Y.)- to develop a community-based transition program. This program demonstrated how partnerships between universities and high schools can result in rich and relevant transition preparation for students with disabilities.

Join us on a conversation to explore some strategies for embedding transition assessments through a tiered community-based program, while establishing opportunities for transitioning youth with disabilities. This presentation will support the use of C.I.T.Y. Manual for implementing all the components of the C.I.T.Y. Program.

Please download the C.I.T.Y. Manual before the presentation.
