Youth Transitions Collaborative Emerging Leaders Program
Invites YOU to our February 2015 event

In an ever evolving workplace, the dynamics of the workforce are increasingly diverse. The YTC Emerging Leaders Program invites you to join us as we learn more about the history of intersectionality and how we all fit in. Patrick Cokley from the Office of Disability Employment Policy (ODEP) will present on the history of intersectionality, and Scherrone Dunhamn from the Department of Labor will share her personal story of navigating the workplace while embracing her disability as an aspect of diversity. There will also be group discussion on pertinent issues involving diversity in the workplace, and how to be more inclusive for all groups. Refreshments will be provided.

Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015
Time: 5:30-7:30 pm
Location: National Youth Transitions Center (NYTC) 2013 H St. NW
Washington, DC 20006

To RSVP and request accommodations, please click here. Or you may register through email at ELP@aapd.com

The Emerging Leaders program, supported by a grant from The HSC Foundation, is a monthly event coordinated by the American Association of People with Disabilities (AAPD) for young people with disabilities in the Washington, DC metro area to help expand their professional network with established professionals, representatives from 45+ organizations, and their peers at the National Youth Transitions Center (NYTC).